I. Introduction

The National Service Training Program – Civic Welfare Training Service (NSTP CWTS) is one of the three components of NSTP offered in colleges and universities in the Philippines, alongside the Literacy Training Service (LTS) and the Reserved Officers' Training Corps (ROTC). CWTS focuses on enhancing students' involvement in community service and social development. It aims to develop the values of civic consciousness, discipline, leadership, and social responsibility among students while allowing them to contribute meaningfully to the community. Through hands-on activities such as environmental projects, health campaigns, and community clean-up drives, students are given the opportunity to apply what they have learned in the classroom to real-life situations. These activities not only foster a sense of teamwork and cooperation but also provide students with a deeper understanding of social issues and the importance of active citizenship. Participants often find themselves inspired by the positive impact they can make, gaining valuable skills that extend beyond academic achievement.

As part of the program, students are encouraged to identify specific needs within their communities and develop innovative solutions to address them. This approach cultivates a proactive mindset, empowering students to become agents of change. Moreover, CWTS emphasizes the importance of empathy and compassion, encouraging participants to connect with diverse groups and learn from different perspectives.

In addition to the tangible benefits for the community, the CWTS experience enriches students' personal growth. It enhances their communication skills, boosts their confidence, and prepares them for future roles as leaders and collaborators in various fields. By bridging the gap between theoretical knowledge and practical application, the NSTP CWTS plays a crucial role in shaping well-rounded individuals ready to contribute positively to society.

II. Implementation/Activities/Observation

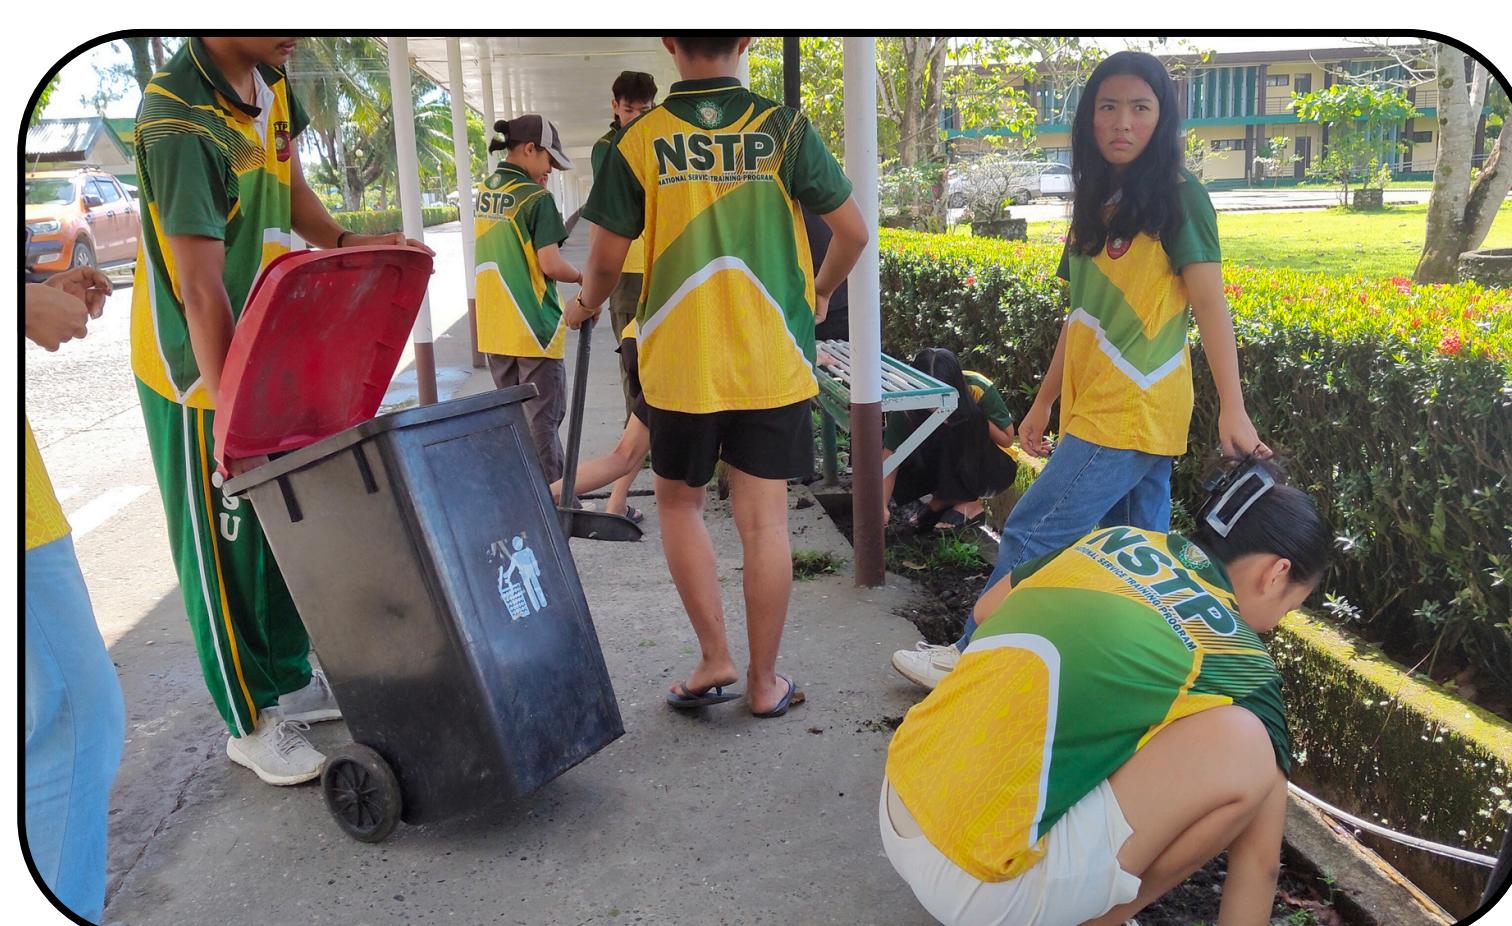

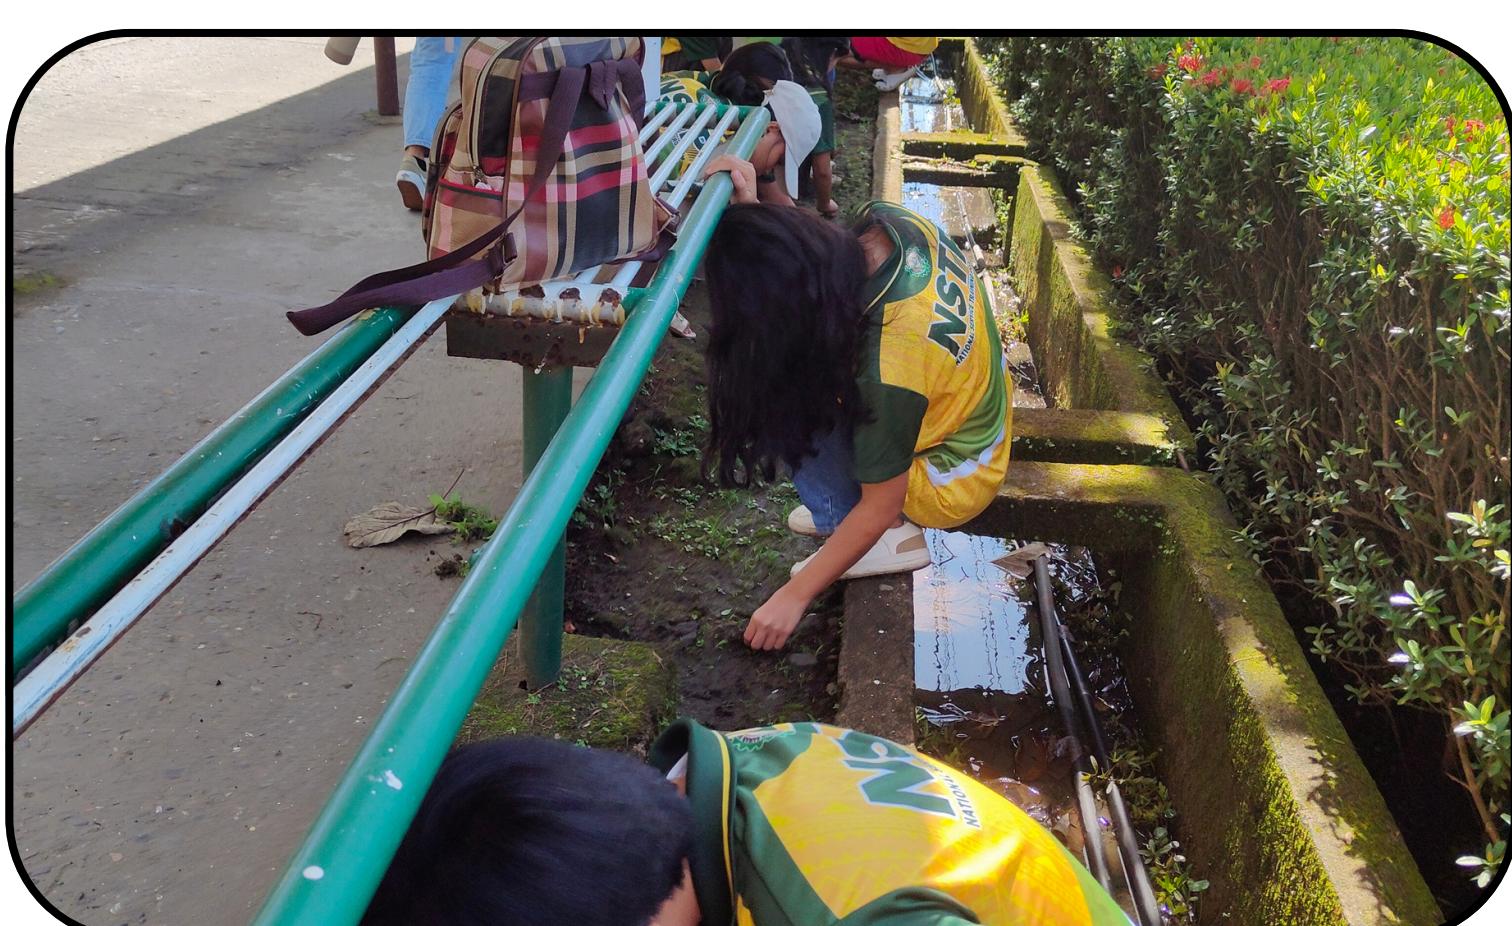

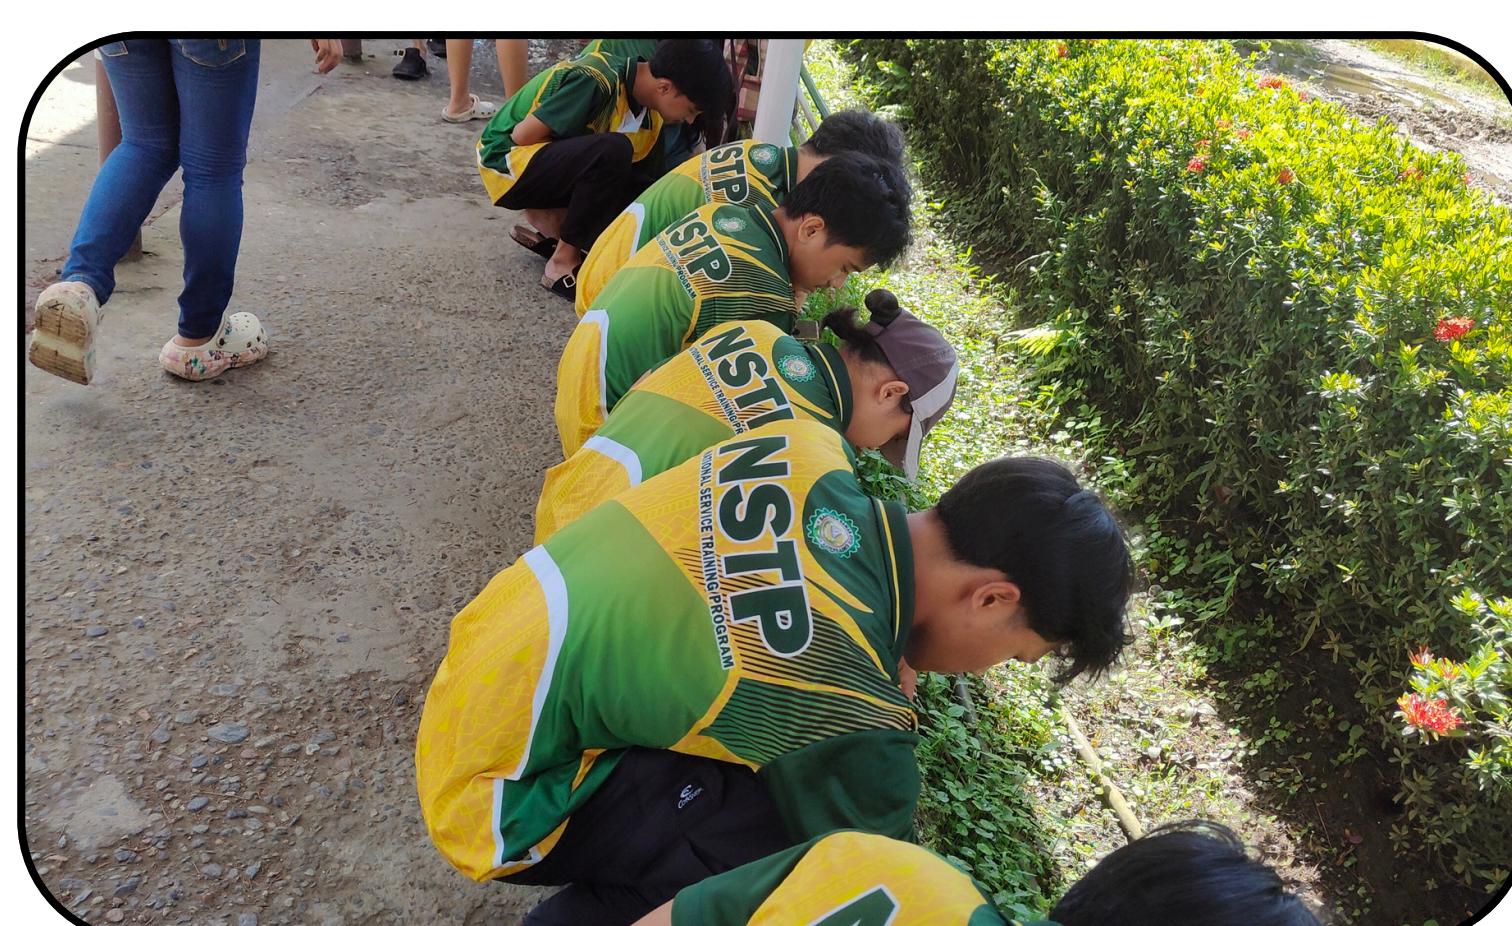

On April 5, 2025, our NSTP CWTS group at Eastern Samar State University took part in a campus clean-up activity. We focused our efforts on the hallways, starting from the front of the College of Education. With brooms in hand and teamwork in action, we were ready to make a difference.

The sun was up, but our energy was even brighter. We swept, picked up litter, and cleared pathways all the way to the gate entrance of the campus. It was hard work, but we made it fun with laughter and music along the way.

Cleaning turned out to be more than just a task—it became a bonding experience. We shared jokes, encouraged each other, and celebrated every clean spot like it was a small victory. There was something satisfying about seeing the hallways shine again.

We also learned that maintaining cleanliness is a shared responsibility. The activity taught us discipline, teamwork, and care for our surroundings. It reminded us that even small efforts can lead to a big impact.

Looking back, that day was more than just a clean-up—it was a core memory in the making. We had fun, learned valuable lessons, and left the campus looking better than we found it. NSTP CWTS gave us more than just a task; it gave us a moment to be proud of.

II. Implementation/Activities/Observation

On April 12, 2025, our NSTP CWTS group at Eastern Samar State University took part in a clean-up activity despite the light rain. We started cleaning from the front of the College of Education all the way to the College of Engineering. The rainy weather didn't stop us from having fun, sharing gossip, and working as a team.

After about an hour of cleaning, we moved to a new spot in front of the Administrative Building. There, we continued our tasks while also taking random videos and photos to capture the moment. The mix of work and laughter made the activity even more enjoyable.

It was a simple day, but one filled with teamwork, fun, and unforgettable memories. We learned the value of cooperation while also bonding with our classmates. NSTP CWTS definitely turned a rainy day into something special.
